House Group Whacks Ninety-four Millions From President's Budget

17 Men Fret in Jail Over Inability to Raise Bail; Agents Following Leads

Many Enforcement Groups Continue Investigations Into Alleged Hitleresque Plot

Kelly Befuddled

Hotel Worker Expresses Bewilderment When He Is Questioned

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—A woe-begone group of 17 men accused of plotting to overthrow the United States government fretted in jail today, unable to raise $50,000 bail each, as federal agents sought other alleged conspirators of the "revolutionary" syndicate.

While federal, state, national guard and New York city police authorities pressed investigations of the fantastic scheme to launch an anti-Semitic program, assassinate a dozen congressmen and set up a Hitleresque dictatorship in this country, jail attendants described the 17 prisoners as greatly subdued.

All pleaded innocent yesterday when they were arraigned on a charge of sedition conspiracy, mumbling their pleas with the exception of blond, long-nosed William G. Bishop, alleged ring leader, who shouted in a voice heard outside the court room:

"Not guilty!"

Kelly is Bewildered

One of the group, George Kelly, 24, a hotel worker, expressed bewilderment at the G-men's charges, complaining:

"I don't know whether I'm against communism or not. I don't know what it's all about."

J. Edgar Hoover, FBI chief, said he had evidence to support every jot of the charge that a conspiracy was aimed at establishing a dictatorship.

"It took only 23 men to overthrow Russia," Hoover reminded skeptics.

Meanwhile, residents at Narrowsburg, N. Y., where FBI agents said they spied on the alleged conspirators while they were at rifle practice, recalled having seen a group of 10 or 12 strangers at a nearby range and commented that their marksmanship was "awful."

The American Civil Liberties Union last night telephoned Senator Morris Sheppard, chairman of the Senate military affairs committee, urging that the committee favorably report a bill abolishing private military activities.

The bill, drawn by the union, was introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish (R., N. Y.) in 1938.

"The arrest by FBI agents of 17 Christian Front revolutionists in New York is strong evidence of the need for a bill to regulate the formation or activities of private military forces such as that introduced by Representative Hamilton Fish," the telegram read.

"While those arrested are charged with breach of existing law against the overthrow of government, the Fish bill will punish all unauthorized military activities by private groups regardless of such conspiracies. Actual preparations for force are a menace to democratic methods and we strongly urge your committee to favorably report H. R. 2645."

Not Profitable

Helsinki, Jan. 16 (AP)—Spying for Soviet Russia is not particularly remunerative, Finnish newspapers reported today. One Finn was quoted as saying Russian agents had paid him 120 markka (about $2.16) and promised 500 markka (about $9) additional if his mission was successful. He was asked to provide complete information on the strength of Finnish forces and the position of Finnish storehouses.

Munitions Theft

Syracuse, Pa., Jan. 16 (AP)—Fifty-three cases containing 25,000 dynamite caps were reported stolen yesterday from a storage magazine of the du Pont de Nemours & Company powder mill at nearby Jermynn.

Against Tax

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The New York Retail Tobacco Council says the city's six months old one cent cigarette tax has caused a $9,000 loss and left 40,000 retailers on the "verge of ruin." The council demanded repeal.

Return to Palace

London, Jan. 16 (AP)—Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose returned to Buckingham Palace today for the first time since before the war. They came here from Sandringham Castle with their father and mother, King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Mrs. Ethel Rouse, 21, is shown in Omaha, Neb., where she was held on mail fraud charges brought by an Arizona highway worker who claimed she jilted him after he sent her $50 to come west to be married.

Mae Murray Fails to Regain Charge Of Koran Mdivani

Glamor Girl of Silent Screen Is Assailed by Bergan for Her Lack of Care

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 16 (AP)—Blonde Mae Murray, glamor girl of the silent screen, failed today in her effort to regain custody of her 13-year-old son, Koran Mdivani, who chose to live apart from his mother in a simple rural home.

State Supreme Court Justice Francis Bergan, citing Miss Murray's "singular" lack of interest in the boy, son of Prince David Mdivani, whom she divorced in 1933, decided he should remain in the custody of a family in nearby Averill Park.

The jurist dismissed and quashed a writ of habeas corpus obtained by the thrice-wedded, thrice-divorced actress in her attempt to obtain the boy's custody.

Miss Murray broke into tears when she was informed last October at the conclusion of the proceedings that her son decided to remain away from her.

Koran ruled against his actress-mother during questioning in judicial chambers by Justice Bergan, presiding at the proceedings

Spurns Requests

Committee Slashes 25 Millions From Fund for Maritime Units; Others Reduced

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—A Soviet Russian broadcast accusing Sweden of forcing the unemployed to fight for Finland increased today the strain of relations between the U. S. S. R. and Scandinavian countries.

In recommending that Congress appropriate only $1,100,212,307 of the $1,194,704,473 asked by Mr. Roosevelt, the committee trimmed $75,000,000 from the maritime commission's estimate of $200,000,000 for the ship construction fund.

Because of contract authorizations, however, it appeared that this saving was only temporary and would have to be restored later under the 10-year ship building program.

In line with this, the committee approved a $150,000,000 increase in the commission's contract authorization raising it to a total of $595,000,000. If approved by Congress this would mean the commission could contract to spend that total sum of money in advance of appropriations.

The effect of the $25,000,000 cut, therefore, would be to keep that amount off this year's treasury balance sheet, and that might help to hold the federal debt within the present $45,000,000,000 limit.

The National Resources Planning Board and the office of government reports—formerly the National Emergency Council—were the Roosevelt agencies denied funds by the committee. These offices were transferred to the White House under the reorganization plan last summer.

Turns Down Request

The committee turned down President Roosevelt's request for $1,060,000 for the planning board and $1,055,000 for the reports office with the explanation that it could find nothing in "legislative history" authorizing their existence.

President Roosevelt's uncle, Frederic Delano, is chairman of the resources board.

The independent offices bill provides funds for most federal agencies not in the regular departments.

Approving $125,000,000 for the maritime commission's ship construction fund, the committee said it believed an additional $75,000,000 asked could be withheld for the present because of "inevitable delays which are encountered in a program of this character."

The total cut listed under the heading, "executive offices of the President," was $2,136,400, although no reduction was made in any of the sums proposed for the White House itself. This sum included the reductions in the planning board and office of government reports and small items.

Immediate House consideration was asked for the bill.

Biggest at F. W. A.

The biggest real whack was taken at the Federal Works Agency which was created in last year's reorganization. The committee cut $15,397,290 from this agency, recommending $187,113,270 for its purposes.

One of the places where the committee recommended a cut was in government promotions. It proposed complete elimination of an estimated $3,088,000 item to cover promotions in all government branches.

Some promotions could be effected, the committee said, from savings resulting from turnover, vacancies and the like.

A restriction was written into the bill prohibiting use of any funds by any public housing agency for projects to be occupied by "any person other than a citizen of the United States."

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—The position of the treasury January 13: Receipts, $6,290,593.23; expenditures, $17,292,435.54; net balance, $2,387,848.120.55; working balance included $1,678,888,082.48; customs receipts for month, $18,780,543.47; receipts for fiscal year (July 1), $2,883,393,642.04; expenditures, $5,104,596,236.53; excess of expenditures, $2,221,202,594.49; gross debt, $42,081,011,451.39; increase over previous day, $8,083,395.05; gold assets, $17,776,353.

Norwegian Foreign Office Says Red Planes Land in Territory

Copenhagen, Jan. 16 (AP)—A Soviet Russian broadcast accusing Sweden of forcing the unemployed to fight for Finland increased today the strain of relations between the U. S. S. R. and Scandinavian countries.

Wide Fluctuations In Stocks Monday

Prices on the New York Stock Exchange showed wide fluctuations Monday, closing with moderate losses, but much above the lows for the day. Industrials, as measured in the Dow-Jones averages, opened slightly above Saturday's close, started downward after the first hour, showed a loss of 1.78 points at 1 o'clock and then rallied sharply in the final hour of trading, to show a net loss for the day of .54 point, to 144.65. Rails were off for the day .27, to 30.33, and Utilities lost .18, to 25.03. Volume was 860,000 shares. Heavy industry shares were prominent in the decline and Steel common was off 2½ points at one time, closing a point lower.

Stable markets were irregular with the general trend upward and the commodity index gained .64 point for the day. Cotton futures closed up two to 21 points. Dollar wheat again appeared as the grain showed advances of 1½ to 2½ cents a bushel at Chicago. Silk futures were off sharply. Leading bread baking concerns raised prices of bread one cent a loaf in the New York and New England areas, to meet upward trend of wheat prices. Sugar refiners have extended maximum price of 4.50 cents a pound to all customers during the next six months, taking entire risk of a rise in prices during that time.

Bonds firmed in late trading although final prices generally were below Saturday's close. Foreign and government obligations were easier. Belgium 6½s of 1949 lost more than three points and Norwegian issues were off more than two.

Showings a drop less than generally was expected steel operations for the week beginning January 15 are scheduled 84.8 per cent of capacity, a drop of 1.3 points from last week's 86.1 per cent and compared with 90 per cent a month ago. For the same week last year the rate was 52.7 per cent. A Buffalo sale showed a downward trend in steel scrap prices, the sale being at $17.25 a ton, $2.75 below the last major sale and $5.25 below the mid-October price. Custom smelters reduced offerings for scrap copper one-fourth cent a pound.

A call for a "coker" by a soft drink user, means coca cola, according to a decision made in U. S. district court at Los Angeles. Judge McCormick permanently enjoined Los Angeles Brewing Co. and an affiliate from "using upon or in connection with the sale or advertisement of any beverage syrup or any beverage made therefrom the word 'coker' whether spelled 'coker' or otherwise."

Trustees of the New Haven road estimate that the road will have gross revenue in 1940 of $84,500,000, compared with gross of $83,424,653 in 1939. Net operating income for the year is estimated at $9,890,000, an increase of $1,435,009, or 17 per cent over the estimates for 1939. On this basis the fixed charges contemplated by the reorganization plan proposed by an ICC examiner would be covered 1.9 times.

Report of Pennsylvania Railroad for 11 months ended November 30, shows net income of $26,406,088, or $2 a common share. Compares with net of $84,452,161 in the first 11 months of 1938.

Amsterdam Bourse was depressed yesterday by fears of invasion of Belgium and Holland. Paris Bourse was weak, as was the London market.

March of Dimes Opens Tomorrow

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The stock market took on a selective rallying tinge today and favorites came back fractions to around a point.

The recovery shift was at an extremely slow pace, however, and here and there, minus signs were to be seen near the final point. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 600,000 shares.

The fact the list had gone through a 4-day decline and had lost virtually all of its wartime upturn brought some short covering and in-and-out purchases, brokers said, on the theory that retreat may have gone too far.

Intensification of the European sea warfare, with the sinking of three British submarines, kept many nervous traders on the shelf. Scant inspiration either way found in the general run of news from business, politics or congress.

Bonds were mixed and commodities irregularly lower. Foreign markets were about steady.

Among supported stocks were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Boeing, Great Northern, Cluett Peabody, Consolidated Edison, Sears Roebuck, Goodrich, U. S. Gypsum, Westinghouse, and Kennebec.

Given a lift in the curb were Brewster, Aeronautical, American Cyanamid "B" and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

St. Peter's Holy Name Installs

St. Peter's Holy Name Society installed its new officers Monday night at a business session replete with enthusiasm and sound plans for the near future.

Fred C. Harder took over the presidency from the retiring George Reis, who served during the year 1939 in which the society was reorganized to a degree of activity never before attained. Francis Clarke was installed vice-president, with Nicholas L. Bruck in the secretary's chair and Joseph W. Huber as treasurer.

During the business meeting plans were unfolded for educational, athletic and social activities. A study club has been formed and will take up its program on Thursday, January 25, at 8 o'clock, and thereafter will meet every second and fourth Thursday of each month at the school hall. Changes are to be made in the Holy Name Bowling League to shorten the time consumed for the matches and a committee has been appointed to consider a drama to be produced shortly after Easter.

The Rev. Henry E. Herdegen, spiritual director of the society, in his usual short talk, urged the men as members of the Holy Name Society, to give good example in their daily contacts by the use of clean speech.

After adjournment of the business meeting moving pictures of the recently scuttled German battleship, Graf Spee, were shown in addition to a talking comedy. Refreshments were served in the club rooms to the approximately 180 men who attended the meeting and the recreational facilities were enjoyed.

K. of C. Ball Plans Progressing

Plans for the 21st annual charity ball to be held at the municipal auditorium on Friday evening, February 2, under the auspices of Kingston Council, Knights of Columbus, are progressing rapidly.

At a recent meeting of the chairman of the various committees it was announced that the patron tickets had been mailed to the membership and to the many friends of the local council who by their cooperation in sponsoring this annual event, make it possible to continue to carry on the charity work of the organization.

During the many years since the formation of the K. of C. charity fund, the funds have been expended for all charitable causes regardless of race, color or creed. To those in need, this fund has been used in many cases to provide nourishment, to take care of the sick, to assist in the payment of rents to maintain the home, to furnish equipment for crippled dependents, to aid hospitalization cases, to properly clothe needy children and for all other cases of need that have been brought to the attention of the officers in charge of the fund.

P. G. K. William F. Leehey, chairman of the patron committee, urges all recipients of patron tickets to make returns as quickly as possible to aid the work of the committee in compiling the patron list for this year's charity ball which will be published shortly.

LOCAL AID FOR FINLAND

The Kingston Daily Freeman is pleased to comply with the request of the newly formed local organization sponsoring a Finnish relief fund in Kingston and throughout Ulster county to publish the names of the contributors to this fund.

The Finnish relief fund is in line with what The Freeman has said editorially, "in this inspiring situation Americans, too, have a part to play. Our role is to uphold the spirit and fighting power of the brave little Finnish democracy by all the encouraging and material help that can be given by a non-belligerent nation."

Moral support is not enough. Americans are able and glad to give Finland more than sympathy in its heroic fight. No better way of showing this could be offered than through substantial contributions through the local fund, which is headed by William C. Kingman as chairman, and Harold V. Clayton as treasurer.

Finland is not a country which would ordinarily need or ask for assistance. In its brief existence as a free country, it has performed prodigious tasks in making its own people comfortable and happy. Finland has not only been able to care for its own people, but has honestly paid its debts as well.

Nearly a million Finnish non-combatants—women, children and aged men—soon will need outside assistance, according to Herbert Hoover, national chairman of the Finnish relief fund, if starvation and suffering are to be prevented.

Amplifying his pleas for funds because of the increasing urgency of the situation, Mr. Hoover said "Finland's breadwinners are at the front or working for the army—one out of 11 of the whole people have been called to arms. Our representatives in Finland report that 500,000 of those left at home are destitute already, and that destitution is increasing toward 900,000. Under ceaseless aerial attacks the women, children and aged men have been driven from the towns into the countryside in the midst of Arctic winter."

Desire to contribute toward the Finnish fund by residents of this city and of townships throughout Ulster county has resulted in the formation of the local organization. Although some have already made contributions through other agencies, there are many who will be glad of the opportunity to express in a tangible way their deep feeling for the young democracy.

LEFT TURNS

Traffic control and driving practices, on the whole, are remarkably uniform throughout the United States. But there is one notable exception. Cleveland, all by itself, insists on the "rotary" or "outside" turn instead of the "inside" turn as the proper way when turning left at a crossing.

In a recent poll of Cleveland opinion on this disputed practice, three-fourths of the drivers and 86 per cent of pedestrians favor the rotary plan. They insist that it is safer and more convenient than the usual procedure. And so everybody from anywhere else has to use it when driving through Cleveland, whether he likes it or not. The Clevelanders, when driving elsewhere, are usually annoyed by the refusal of the rest of the country to adopt their system.

By the rotary plan, when a driver comes to a crossing where he wants to turn left, he swings to the right while he has a green light, and stops while the through traffic flows by; then when the light changes he turns left with the green.

There is really no good reason why even so important a matter as a presidential campaign should tie our national life into knots for several months. It is likely that everything which needs to be said for or against either party or any candidates could be said in eight or ten weeks. And a concentrated campaign in the early fall would have the advantages of more tolerable weather, also a knowledge of national and foreign affairs not possible in the early summer.

Politics, after baseball, is our favorite national sport; but we like our ball games short and snappy, and why not our elections, too? We pride ourselves on our American efficiency, but European democracies, Britain for example, handle their elections more expeditiously than we do.

COLLECTING WATER BILLS

We've heard of a form of discipline called the "water cure" and sometimes used in prison, on tough cases. It is effective but cruel. Many will be reminded of it when they hear of the way the city of Lakeview, Ore., collects its water bills.

It works like a charm, says the head of the water department. When citizens are delinquent, he doesn't argue and browbeat them. He just attaches a little gadget to the customer's water meter. It doesn't turn off the water, but checks the flow so that a mere dribble comes from the faucets. After waiting a couple of times for enough water to trickle out to wash the dishes or fill a bathtub, the customer rushes in to the water office eager to pay.

Maybe it isn't fair to spread information like this. Officials might start adopting the same merciless scheme wherever people are slow in paying their water bills—and that means just about everywhere.

CHINA'S ALLIES

Arithmetic, geography and philosophy are on China's side in her resistance to Japanese aggression, says Dr. Lin Yutang, Chinese author.

These are good allies, particularly for winning long-range victories. But they are not enough to make the invader give up and go home and to bring about an early peace and restoration of normal living. We can foresee a happier day for Chinese posterity when right shall once again prevail. The outlook for tomorrow, next day and next spring is gloomier.

The people of Helsinki, a neat folk, are always tidying up after a bombardment. Just one building in the city is said to look neglected and dirty. That's the Soviet Legation.

CAUSES OF OBSCURE FEVER.

When a patient is admitted to hospital with a rise in temperature, there is usually some disease or infection present which accounts for the rise. However, it is not unusual to see the chart of a patient marked P.U.O., pyrexia (fever) of unknown origin. This means that the cause of the fever will have to be found so that proper treatment may be given.

Dr. C. F. Keeler, Boston, in the Texas State Journal of Medicine, tells of his study of eighty cases of obscure fever. He points out that in trying to find the cause one must take into account geography, climate, and the presence of certain diseases in that community. Also the history of other infections and the habits of the individual must be investigated."

The methods used to find the cause of the fever varied with individual cases and included locating special organs, finding definite signs of certain diseases, cutting out small pieces of tissue for examination under a microscope, and the use of X-rays. "In a few cases the cause of the fever was found only after making an opening by surgery."

In the group of cases in which fever was caused by infections, the commonest causes were tuberculosis, staphylococcus, and streptococcus (teeth and mouth), and undulant fever.

The second large group of cases in which fever was a prominent feature consisted of ten patients with tumors (growths), the commonest places in which they were found being the intestine and the kidneys.

In a number of cases the heat producing processes of the body were normal but the processes which get rid of the heat, particularly the skin, were not normal. This condition was found in patients with heart failure, lack of thyroid juice, hardening of the skin, acquired or inherited absence of the sweat glands, or following use of some drugs which prevent sweating; and in anæmia (thin blood).

As we consider the above causes of fever, it can be seen that many of them would not be suspected if careful investigation had not been made.

The fact that tuberculosis was found to be the cause of so many of these cases of obscure fever is certainly worthy of consideration; and also the fact that growths in intestine and kidney are likewise a frequent cause of obscure fever.

Every New Crisis Among Belligerents Causes Fear U. S. May Become Involved in Hostilities

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 16.—Every time there is an intensification of war activity or reports of an extension of the area of hostilities in Europe, the reprecussion here is one of grave concern lest some new turn of the war will come affecting America.

It is conceded that unexpected or unforeseen happenings in Europe may change the political situation here and it is likewise conceded that national defense appropriations in Congress will be passed or increased according as it appears that the war will be of short or long duration.

Perhaps the most serious aspect of the European developments, when they seem ready to entangle neutral countries, like Holland and Belgium, is that gradually the number of states which could possibly wield an influence for peace is being diminished.

The Scandinavian countries have been dragged into the orbit of operations and into diplomatic controversies which complicate their own status and make less and less probable the maintenance of neutral attitudes. About the only influences that now could mediate in the making of peace are those of Rome and Washington.

Whether the allied powers would be willing at any time to entrust the making of preliminary peace plans to Premier Mussolini is doubtful since he himself will insist on making claims for Italy at the peace table. This leaves the United States government and the Vatican the only powerful moral forces to help make peace in the world.

This is one reason why President Roosevelt felt that he ought promptly to associate himself with the efforts of the pope so that there would be no crossing of wires or misunderstandings in the moves that may be launched toward a peace conference.

Despite the outward signs of more war, the urge for peace continues unabated and there is reason to believe it often discussed informally between prominent

West Side Group Plans Discussed

A score of directors of the West of the Hudson Association met Friday in Monticello, and heard plans for immediate furtherance of the association's aims and plans and an address by Philip Florman of the bureau of state publicity, who declared that proved experience of the bureau indicated comprehensive associations that cover wide areas are more effective than small units.

The association is immediately faced with the offer of a gift in the form of the Ulster County Apple Blossom Festival, which has been successfully conducted for two years in the Kingston region. The offer was made by Albert Kurdt, Ulster farm agent, who has been active in the festival's organization. He proposed that the association take it over and possibly link it with other blossom festivals in the area, to run consecutively. Already, he declared, inquiries were coming in about the date of this year's festival.

The remainder of the meeting was given over to other talks. Jenine Caracappa and Mary Warian talked on the topic, "Living With Others." Marion Grusky gave a talk on "Absences and Procedence When Absent."

A very comprehensive talk was given by Philip Florman of the state bureau of publicity staff.

Two canyons of barbaric pictur-esque are included in Canyon de Chelly National Monument in Arizona. One is the deep chasm which gives the place its name; the other, sinister Canyon del Muerto. Both canyons rise in sheer cliffs to heights of 1,000 feet above the floor. This varies from a width of 10 to 30 yards. There a few hundred Navahos have their homes. The warm sun reflected from the red cliffs helps to ripen the fruit of their tiny peach orchards and their melons and corn. Each October the Navahos hold a fire dance up on the canyon rim. Whites are admitted to the rite, which attracts spectators from miles around.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdoch, veteran marine engineer.

No. 125—Anna

Holding the distinction of being the fifth steamboat built expressly for towing purposes, the steamboat "Anna" appeared on the Hudson river in the year 1854 and continued in service for a period of 36 years. During her span of service the "Anna" became a familiar sight traveling up and down the river with strings of barges, and it was common knowledge among the rivermen that the small "Anna" was a vessel equal in power to many of the larger converted passenger steamboats which were hauling barges and canal boats.

The towboat "Anna" was built at East Albany, New York, in 1854. She was a wooden hull vessel measuring 146 feet in length, breadth of beam of 25 feet, depth of hold eight feet two inches. Her gross tonnage was listed at 201 tons while her net tonnage rating was 133, and she was powered with a vertical beam engine having a cylinder diameter of 40 inches with a 10 foot stroke.

To the towline fleet of Commodore Van Santvoord in 1854 came the towboat "Anna," a small steamboat built for towing purposes and used for the following 36 years on the Hudson river between New York and Albany. In the fall of 1863 Commodore Van Santvoord and a group of busi-

Economic Cycle Subject of Talk

The depression was a logical thing and not an accident, the Rev. Malachy O'Leary of St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, told members of St. Joseph's Holy Name Society at its first meeting of the year Sunday evening.

"A Phase of Economics" was the subject of Father O'Leary's talk and he pointed out that the depression was the working out of economic principles which have been governing the world—for a long time.

The economic cycle through the eras of man power, animal power and machine power, was traced by the speaker and he explained the economic changes during the last two centuries on the condition of society throughout the world.

Relationship of the machine age, with its introduction of labor-saving devices, to present unemployment was described. He condemned the tendency of arriving at snap judgments and reaching conclusions based on insufficient evidence.

Of all the theories and panaceas offered for the solution of our economic problems, it was the speaker's opinion that the Townsend old age pension plan, although still an untried idea, seemed to offer a solution for getting idle money back into circulation. He recommended that his listeners study the plan and try to arrive at a decision as to its merits and feasibility.

The Catskill Mountaineers, under the direction of M. Amarelo, including the well known local musicians, Pardee and Allen, and the Amarelo family, played popular songs of the day, and of old-fashioned melodies.

Dogs May Serve Britain in War

Canines Have Distinguished Themselves on Scores Of Battlefields.

LONDON.—A nationwide appeal for donation of dogs to be trained for service with the British expeditionary force is anticipated if the war office accepts a proposal by Lieut. Col. E. H. Richardson, whose canine messengers have distinguished themselves on a score of battlefields in the last 40 years.

Two thousand of Colonel Richardson's dogs played heroes' roles with the British army during the World war. Hundreds of them died in action and were buried in unmarked graves in Flanders. This little canine army was credited in official dispatches with saving entire battalions from almost certain annihilation.

At 74, Colonel Richardson has told the war office he is prepared to organize and train a similar army—under fire.

Used in Far East.

"Yes, I'm getting old, but I can do the job again," Colonel Richardson said. "The first dogs I trained for war service distinguished themselves by locating scores of Russian wounded in the millet fields of the Far East during the Russo-Japanese war. My dogs have carried out important military missions in Morocco, Bulgaria, Montenegro and Tripoli.

"Of course they've done pretty well in peacetime, too," said the officer, a mischievous twinkle in his eyes. "Take, for instance, the mastiff, bloodhound and the collie I trained especially for Sultan Abdul Hamid of Turkey as watchdogs for his harem. They had a capital job. Scotland Yard has used my dogs, too. It was one of my dogs that tore the trousers of the famous highwayman, Dick Turpin, when they nabbed him in Yorkshire. He had to climb a tree pretty fast."

"One of the outstanding dogs trained in my kennels south of Paris during the World war was Airedale Jack. He saved practically an entire battalion by running through a heavy German barrage for half a mile to brigade headquarters with a vital message strapped to his collar. Jack reached headquarters with his foreleg smashed and his jaw broken. He delivered his message, then died.

Sheep Dog Hero.

"Then there was Tweed, a bobtailed sheep dog. He went on duty with a Scottish Canadian regiment at Amiens in 1918. The Germans broke through the British front lines. If they had gone any farther it would have been serious. Three dogs unsuccessfully tried to reach the headquarters of the French Colonials three kilometers back with a message to send reinforcements. Then Tweed tried it and made the grade. He ran the German barrage and arrived in 10 minutes. The French were quickly sent up, and the line was straightened."

Colonel Richardson developed a huge organization for training dogs during the World war, including approximately 2,000 game wardens. Hundreds of dogs, including airedales, mastiffs, retrievers, sushers and sheep dogs, were in constant training at a central kennel in Epinal, France. From these central kennels dogs and their trainers were pooled out to sectional kennels behind the front line. In each of these an average of 48 dogs were kept, tended by a sergeant and 16 men—three dogs to a keeper.

Women Shop for Sick As Worth-While 'Hobby'

Her generous gesture four years ago became an unpaid, full-time job for Mrs. Harold Kinsley, 50-year-old mother of four boys, when she offered to shop for patients in the tuberculosis unit of the Ann Arbor, Mich., University hospital.

Now, twice each week, she buys merchandise from downtown stores for 40 patients and some of the staff, while a volunteer helper, Mrs. M. W. Wheeler, 53, mother of two daughters, shops for 50 patients in another ward.

Both women admit they like to shop, even though it interferes with household work. Both agree that men are easier to shop for, because "they know what they want, where to get it, and are better satisfied."

But, admitting the women patients have whims about their purchases, they say women are grand, too, in their appreciation.

Device Locates Forest Fires

A range finder for use in locating forest fires and distant objects and which automatically points to the exact location of the fire without reference to maps has been developed by a government employee, according to a patent issued to Donald P. Bennett of Washington. The range finder includes a table on which is mounted a circular perspective photograph of the surrounding field of view. Rotatably mounted on the table is an alidade, a sighting device. On the alidade, in turn, is mounted a horizontal beam on which slides a spattered silver mirror mounted at 45 degrees and from which hangs a pointer. In locating a distant forest fire or object during the winter season when the rest of the Pacific Crest is blocked by snow.

The Desert Crest trail, according to Mr. Clarke, will afford opportunities to those who are physically able and sufficiently skilled to enjoy mountain climbing and life on the open trail by the backpacking method during the winter season when the rest of the Pacific Crest is blocked by snow.

Describing the Desert Crest trail, Clarke stated, "A pathway of wide horizons and a great variety of mountain scenery, the trail traverses a semi-tropical region along the summit ridges rising above the desert country."

Broker's Son Found Dead in Stable

Jericho, N. Y., Jan. 16 (UPI)—George M. Pynchon, Jr., socially prominent son of a Wall Street broker, was found dead in the six-stall stable on his Long Island estate last night, his powder-burned left hand clutching a double-barreled shot gun and much of his head blown away.

Deputy Medical Examiner Abram Freireich said he had committed suicide and had been dead between 35 and 40 hours.

The body was found after a search of the estate by Pynchon's wife, the former Katherine V. Brown. She told police she had heard Pynchon driven to the house in a taxi about 1 o'clock Sunday morning; but he did not sleep in his bed that night and was not to be found until she came upon the body in one of the stalls of the modern English stable last night.

Mrs. Pynchon said she knew of no reason why her husband should commit suicide.

Freireich said Pynchon apparently had placed the gun barrel in his mouth, leaned against the wall and pulled the trigger with his left hand.

Chapter 38 At Home

If it came right down to facts, Bob himself had injured her far more than she could do or had done to him. Bob had actually been married before he met her, and had deceived her about it. He had taken her forgiveness for granted; or perhaps he had not thought his rash and youthful folly even required forgiveness. She remembered yet her outraged perception of his turning to her to shield him from Cecily. And he to go raging from home now because Eric Farraday chose to make a tale about an incident long past!

Her lips closed firmly as she thought of the last time she had seen Eric. It was the morning after Bob's departure. He had come striding into the garden to find her, leaving an angry maid staring after him.

"Sue!"

There had been no slightest trace of emotion in that meeting; so far as she was concerned, at any rate. She thought that he looked tired and a little old, in the unrelenting sunlight. There were lines in his face, faint traces of bagginess beneath his eyes. She wondered impersonally what she had ever found exciting about him. She would have as soon thought of embracing the support of the pergola where she stood as going into Eric's arms now.

"What have you gained, Eric?" she heard her own voice inquiring. "By what you did?"

"You," he shot at her. "Your husband has gone. He called me up last night to tell me so."

She laughed outright at that. Men were such dramatists! Eric, rushing in to announce to Bob that years ago Sue had loved him, Bob telephoning Eric that he had taken himself out of Sue's life!

She played amusedly with the subject, recalling Forest Webb and his frantic efforts to rouse Pats that she might communicate some trivial last message to a woman she had never liked: Allen himself and his various scenes with Pats; even young Robert, exacting a cross-your-heart-and-hope-to-die promise from plaid little Susan. Women were too concerned with the essentials of drama to wish the lines spoken, she thought.

It was that spontaneous laughter which sent Eric away at last. His sensitive spirit could brook opposition but not ridicule.

August passed and Bob did not return nor write. Sue began to grow anxious. Her funds were getting low, for one thing. Her position here was growing slightly ridiculous. She practiced various forms of putting a question to young Fellison at the store.

"Oh, Mr. Fellison, do you happen to know if Mr. Trenton has changed his address? I haven't heard from him for several days and I thought—"

No, emphatically that would not do.

"Something has come up I want to wire Mr. Trenton about, and I think he's on his way home—"

No, silence and dignity were her only resource. If Bob chose to put her in so uncomfortable a situation, she could but wait until he realized the ridiculousness of his own anger. She hoped she could keep herself sweet and reasonable. Bob had had a shock, she reminded herself almost daily. He had been touched in the tenderest of all spots, his pride. He had worked hard—how hard only Sue herself knew—to make his business recovery, to pay off the debts growing out of his bankruptcy.

And his ability to do that, the strength which had enabled him to go steadily forward, had its source in her love! Sue knew that as surely as she knew that tomorrow's sun would rise, Bob without her dependence, without her loving confidence in him, would be a Samson shorn.

The House Again

SUDDENLY she knew what she must do! It came to her in a spurt of laughter which brought baby Susan to her side.

"Funny, Muvver!"

"Very funny, darling!"

She reached briskly for the telephone, called St. Joseph. Yes, Mrs. Trenton. Yes, certainly the papers had all been made out; the house belonged to its earlier owner. Was there anything the office could do to assist?

"I'll be over tomorrow," she said.

The next day she put both children in her car and drove to the town of her birth, of her girlhood and the early years of her marriage. She got the key from the real estate office, and made her way briskly out to her old home.

It was in better condition than she had dared to hope: a few rooms repapered, some painting done, the floors waxed . . . it could be ready in less than a week, she was sure.

The garden, she observed happily, had been kept up! She had no idea that Bob had given orders for its care before he left.

Ensued busy days. Hardly were the decorators out than Sue had Shandaken, Jan. 15.—The Home Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Elsie Cleavland on Thursday afternoon. Those present were: Mrs. Ned Kelly, Mrs. Amelia White, Mrs. Roxy Yerry, Mrs. Edna Hummell and Mrs. Grace Osterhoudt.

Among the visitors to Kingston from this place on Thursday were:

moved in. She placed the many-times-moved pieces of furniture to the best advantage, then bought recklessly what else was needed. As with the paint and papering, she charged everything serenely to Bob.

"It begins to look as it used to, Sue," Barbara commented. "I almost expect Pats to drift in, hinting that she needs a new evening gown, that the coat you bought for her last year is out of style. Poor Pats!"

"But happy Allen!" she appended significantly.

"Oh, Sue, if I can only make it up to him!"

From the St. Joseph house Sue telephoned composedly to young Fellison.

"I'm simply swamped here, Mr. Fellison, as you probably know. I'm going to ask you to send Mr. Trenton a night letter saying that we're safely settled. I don't want him to think I've overdone and if you wire—" The emphasis made him stammer eagerly.

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Trenton; I've been feeling guilty that I've let you do it all! But I've been so rushed . . . it's mighty kind of you to let the news come through me!"

Sue smiled faintly as she repeated the telephone in his cradle.

Two days later she went about her preparations as composedly as if she had been in hourly receipt of messages from Bob. She ordered his favorite dinner of broiled steak, French fried potatoes, endive salad and apple pie. She had put Bob's study in order with her own hands, rejoicing that his desk, his books had survived the sale of their goods years ago. As a matter of fact, she had bid in that desk through Allen, knowing that Bob loved it because it was his father's.

She dressed Susan in pale blue organdy, helped young Robert wrestle with the lock of hair which would stand up. And she chose for her own wear a frock which was Bob's favorite: a dull red silk with puffed short sleeves showing her white arms, with a lace collar deep enough to expose the little hollow at the base of her throat.

"Dad's Coming"

AND above and beyond these superficial preparations, she ordered her thoughts. She would not be impatient of Bob's boyish rage which had parted them for so long. She would keep in mind that grief and love rather than lack of consideration for her had caused his going. She would know that just as Bob, being a man, had all a man's unreasonable jealousy, so she, a woman, must soothe him with the healing ointment of tenderness.

She knew that planes arrived in Kansas City from New York between three and four every afternoon. Allowing for a two hours' drive from Kansas City to the suburb where the Trenton house stood, Bob should be here between five and six.

Sue could not have told why she believed Bob to have been East all this time when her one letter to him had been returned. It was as if the channel between her mind and her husband's had been slowly clearing with his departure until now it was free and unobstructed.

"Perhaps I should have had more pride than to send that message to Bob," she thought when she was ready to go downstairs. "But—pride? What is it when human happiness is at stake? It's a word for . . . dramatists and men," she finished with a smile.

"Dad's coming!" Susan caroled, dancing down the stairs ahead of her. "Yes, Dad's coming!"

The house was lovely with its bowls of autumn blossoms here and there, with its freshly papered walls and shining floors; with its dinner table gleaming with Italian cutwork and their wedding silver.

Sue wandered into the garden. The trees were not yet turned and their lusty foliage almost hid the river, but not quite. She could catch a glimpse of its pewter-like brightness from where she stood.

Suddenly she called her son to her.

"Robert dear," she said urgently, "will you take Susan around to the back and keep her until Mother calls you both?"

"Nothing's happened, Mother? You're all right?" His small face was filled with anxiety.

"Perfectly all right dear. It's just that I hear Dad's car, and I want to speak to him for a few minutes alone. Will you do that for Mother?"

His answer was to take his sister's hand and lead her, chattering gaily, out of sight. A taxi drove up to the gate and Bob got out. It wrung Sue's heart to see how tired he looked. She thought back to a day ago when he had returned to her with the ruins of his father's business newly fallen about him. She had been there to comfort him, to encourage and aid him. She would always be there, she vowed in her heart, to do those things for him. "Bob!" she called softly.

He whirled about, saw her, and came toward her uncertainly. "Sue, I've been in hell!"

"Have you, my poor old man? Well, you're home now. You're in—" "Heaven," he supplied on a great sob of relief.

Chapter One

19 George Street

WE WERE having luncheon that day at a resplendent restaurant on Park Avenue.

"A tan would be awfully becoming to you," Toby said irrelevantly as he sipped his coffee. "It is the natural complement to blonde hair."

I ate the last bite of pastry reluctantly and looked across at him. "I have no doubt, Mr. Maughan, but if you've met up with a newspaper lately you must have noticed that the weather, instead of staying in its proper place on page 23, has moved up to the page 1 headlines. This, my young friend, is the worst winter in fifty-five years and chances of getting a tan are slim."

Toby lighted a cigarette, blowing out the smoke lazily. "Swell!" he said. "I've been wanting to meet someone who remembers the winter of '38. How was it?"

"For twenty-one days we were entirely without meat or drink."

"It did wonders for your figure," he said smoothly. "But seriously, Chris, give up the idea of this new studio and let's skip for Bermuda."

"With the sunburn as bait," I murmured.

He straightened his shoulders, annoyed. "With me as bait," he shouted. "You may not know it, but I'm proposing to you for the last time."

I took a long drink of expensive ice-water. "The people at the next table are enchanted," I said. "But couldn't I refuse you for the last time in the privacy of a taxi?"

Toby glared at the people, then called for the check and I looked about with regret.

"This" I told myself, "is the last time you're going to lunch in luxury for many a day, Chris-tine Howarth."

And for a moment, completely replete, I weakened. Life with Toby would be so simple since there was the Maughan money to keep the paths shovelled, but whenever I thought of marrying him I got a queer feeling that the Maughan money would completely inundate the Howarth ambition and that was to paint one really good picture.

I had just come back from Paris ten days before, full of ambition and strong resolutions. But I'd been away from New York too long. The city seemed strange and I felt a little foreign and be-wildered at the changes. If it hadn't been for Toby I'd have taken the first ship back to Havre.

"I don't understand you," Toby said a few minutes later as he slammed the taxi door and sat down beside me.

I nodded. "I've been having the same trouble with myself."

The taxi raced down Park Avenue, skidding crazily over the ice, missing a truck by a squeak.

"You still persist in moving down to that god-awful neighborhood," Toby said between his teeth.

I cleared my throat and told him yes in a small voice, without daring to look at him. The weather and the Maughan money were getting me again.

We rode in silence until the cab pulled up in front of my hotel.

"I'm sailing on Friday," Toby said.

"I shall send you carnations," I said, growing weaker by the moment.

"You'll regret this," Toby predicted darkly.

"Probably," said I.

"The fare is forty-five, Buddy," said the driver.

And I jumped out of the taxi, turning my back on coral beaches and expensive luncheons.

Exactly one week later Toby's malevolent prophecy was fulfilled. Huddled in a wicker chair on the sidewalk in front of my new home I was literally frozen with regret.

For weeks New York had been smothered with snow and chattering its teeth in zero weather, but of all days I had chosen the coldest to move. The temperature shivered around zero until three in the afternoon, then dropped below and the movers were two hours late.

When my furniture and I landed at 19 George Street, Mr. Kimball, the owner of the house had gone out to dinner, leaving a sign in the window of his antique shop that he'd return at six-thirty.

That left three-quarters of an hour to wait. He must have expected me earlier in the day or forgotten that I was moving in. Whatever the misunderstanding I had no keys to the house or to the apartment, so the movers and I had to stay out on the street until he got back. Not that the men were impatient—they were being paid by the hour, and were loafing snugly in the truck with my furniture strewn all over the sidewalk.

A downtown clock struck six. Half an hour more.

Indescribably Dreary

I PLUNGED my hands into my pockets and resolutely forced Bermuda out of my mind. It was awfully distressing. The street light at the corner seemed unusually dim and a blur of snow in the air made the street seem even darker. The few people who were about padded past on the snowy sidewalk like ghosts. It seemed impossible that such a lonely, deserted place lay so near Fifth Avenue.

I gave up being a brave girl and in a torment of regret thought of Toby and Bermuda. Whatever had possessed me to move to such a neighborhood? The day we called to look at the studio had been so different. George Street lay matter-of-fact and peaceful in the crisp, sunny air. I'd seen an advertisement in the paper and grabbed Toby and a taxi to have a look at the apartment and was tremendously impressed. The old brownstone house had obviously been a fine residence and even though it was weathered and crumbling it still had an air of distinction. The studio apartment was very attractive and I liked the white-haired landlord, Mr. Kimball. He had an amazing collection of antiques in his shop and I have a high regard for early American furniture. Toby said it was exactly the type of place a girl from Ohio would fall for, an unkind remark since I'd been living in Paris and hadn't set foot in Ohio for eight years. But in spite of that grinning sur I signed the lease and got my fire escape.

Standing in the middle of the room, I looked about me with a wail. How could I ever make the place look habitable? The room was old-fashioned with a very high ceiling and two long studio windows in the rear. There was a tremendous red brick fireplace and another window on the east and off to the left of the living room lay a small kitchen and bathroom. I'd been so enthusiastic a week ago, and now littered with furniture and lighted by only one bulb in the ceiling the place was indescribably dreary.

The freshly painted white walls looked bare and cold.

I walked across the room and closed the windows, standing for a moment to look down into the dark yard. Mr. Kimball had told me that in the summer he had quite a flower garden in front of the garage, but now all that I could see was an ailanthus tree, its bare branches rattling against the fire escape.

Telegram From Toby

I FELT awful. Looking back on the luncheon with Toby made me ache with regret. He was in Bermuda, warm and comfortable, and here I was in a strange house cold and uncomfortable.

Then Mr. Kimball called up the stairway. "A telegram and a package for you, Miss Howarth."

Woman Is Killed When Car Skids

Mrs. Rose Shifrin, 70, wife of Harris Shifrin of Ellenville, is believed to have been almost instantly killed and five other persons, including Mrs. Shifrin's daughter and grandchild, were injured when a car driven by Harry Shore of Ellenville skidded on the icy pavement, about a mile north of Tuxedo, Saturday afternoon.

Funeral services for Mrs. Shifrin were held in New York city Sunday.

The injured, who were treated in the Tuxedo Hospital, were: Harry Shore, contusions of right leg and chest and cut over the right eye; Mrs. Gertrude Shore, his wife, abrasions of the right knee and contusions of the left arm; Larry Shore, their son, aged 12, fracture of the left leg. John Ruschak, 30, and William Ruschak, 34, employed on the New York city water project at Lackawack and who were being taken to New York, suffered from bruises and abrasions.

Mrs. Shore, who conducts the Kiddie Shop, near Shadowland Theatre, Ellenville, has returned home, but Mr. Shore and the young son are still in the hospital at Tuxedo.

The occupants of the car were injured when after skidding it sideswiped a telephone pole. Mrs. Shifrin's death was the result of a fractured skull. The boy was pinned between the body of the car and the door and passing motorists who assisted were forced to pry open the door in order to release him.

Local Man Wins Prize at Exhibit

Augustus Fischer, the well known pigeon fancier of 22 Mary's avenue, was awarded fourth prize for a black fantail, and fifth prize for a blue fantail, he had entered in the annual poultry and pigeon show in the Hotel Capitol in New York city last week.

Mr. Fischer's pigeons were entered in competition with the barnyard aristocracy of the United States and Canada. The event was the fortieth annual New York poultry show. Meeting in connection with the show was the American Bantam Association and five other specialty groups.

So numerous were the exhibitors at this year's show that more than 2,000 late entries had to be turned down because of lack of space. The usual displays of waterfowl, rabbits, guinea pigs and wildlife had to be entirely omitted to squeeze in the large birds, bantams, turkeys and pigeons into the available space.

Mr. Fischer for years has been interested in raising pigeons and has devoted his time to the raising of high grade fantails of which he owns a considerable number.

This is the first in several years that he has entered his birds in competition at the New York show.

Carpenter work at the factory is being done by Jones and Dale and plumbing is in charge of Frank Sheridan.

CLARK GABLE'S COACH

WHO SHE IS

JOSEPHINE DILLON, drama coach who 16 years ago married a stage-struck employee of the telephone company named Clark Gable and made him into an actor, hates riding on her ex-husband's coattails.

In Hollywood, where she has coached a long line of stars before and since Clark Gable, she is known by her maiden name, Elsewhere she's apt to be called Mrs. Gable and that doesn't set so well.

There's nothing dramatic or romantic about Josephine Dillon's appearance, no attempt to look younger. She dresses simply, speaks in a gentle, cultured voice. Modest about herself, she has only kind words for her former husband. He has worked hard and deserves his success, she says.

This winter Miss Dillon is taking over a new job—teaching dramatics to the girls at Christian College, Columbia, Mo. The course will not be geared towards producing professional actresses. She hopes to steer those who want careers into teaching. There is actually a dearth of college trained dramatics teachers, she believes.

"I love Hollywood but it is discouraging to see so many people out of work. There are some 40,000 actors there and only 400 hold any sort of long-term contracts. Many can't get near the people who hire. Why I've had a boy right here this morning, one of my former students. Nobody will even see him. I'm convinced he's the next Clark Gable—if he gets a chance."

Russians Accuse Sweden of Forcing Idle to Aid Finns

patrols were reported active at several points beyond the Russian border in the north.

The war seems to be settling down again to guerrilla combat artillery duelling on the front lines and attempts by the Russian air force to crush civilian morale—as well as military targets—behind the fronts.

Indeed, the Karelian front appears quite as peaceful as the Finnish cities which have been swept this week by Russian bombing planes.

More than a score of cities were bombed yesterday. The hardest hit of the larger places were Viipuri and Turku on the southern coast. Bombs were also reported dropped in the outskirts of Helsinki.

In Stockholm, The Dagens Nyheter said, "Finland's struggle for liberty never can leave the northern states indifferent" and The NYA Dagligt Alhanda observed, "we must prepare for all eventualities."

Reds Need Supplies

With Finnish Forces on the Karelian Isthmus, Jan. 16 (AP)—Soviet Russia's difficulties in sending supplies to her forces of invasion on the Karelian front may prove as helpful to the Finns here as the paralyzing cold has on other fronts.

A Finnish colonel, who chatted with this correspondent in a snug dugout with the temperature outside 25 degrees below zero, attributed slackening of warfare on the isthmus to Russian transport inadequacy and added that there were indications that some of the Red troops were receiving short rations and these only frozen meat and bread.

The colonel said the isthmus terrain was "overloaded" with Red soldiers—he estimated the number at 400,000—and said:

"A very heavy strain must have been placed on the railway lines to Leningrad which are needed now both for the population of the city itself and for maintenance of Soviet troops on the isthmus."

Leningrad, a city of 2,776,000 is about 50 miles southeast of this front.

The officer declined to speculate on the ultimate result of the Russians' transport difficulties but foreign observers familiar with peace-time difficulties suggested that the question might be answered in the Finnish favor—just as the numbing cold has worked for the defenders elsewhere.

Coldest in 10 Years

While by ordinary standards the 25 degrees below on the Karelian front might be considered a terrific handicap to military operations the hardships here by no means compare with those brought by the 40-below in the far north. Finland is undergoing the coldest weather in 10 years.

With the Russian troops apparently largely busy digging in and trying to keep warm there was only desultory artillery fire yesterday. Meanwhile, Finnish ski

The boy came to the Cunningham home in January, 1936, following a double mastoid operation performed in New York city by Dr. Daniel Cunningham, brother of the defendants in the action.

Justice Bergan left the door open for Miss Murray to renew application for custody at such time as she is able and willing to establish a home for Koran and satisfy the court of her good faith in maintaining the child with her and affording him the direct and personal influence of a mother.

Mercury Descends Fast Over Night

A drop of 14 degrees in 24 hours was recorded by the official city thermometer this morning when at 7 o'clock the lowest temperature recorded since 7 o'clock Monday morning was 20 degrees compared with 34 degrees yesterday.

Colder weather followed the rain storm of Sunday and early Monday morning. It did not grow colder, however, until evening, for during Monday afternoon the official thermometer recorded a high of 40 degrees.

The snow that had fallen which was turned into slush by the rain of Sunday and Monday morning, froze into a mass of ice during the night, and side streets that were not heavily traveled were very slippery. Broadway and other main traffic streets where the heavy traffic was carried were bare of snow and ice except in the gutters.

Falls 35 Feet

Unlocking and opening a window on the third story of his home in his sleep and then plunging 35 feet to a brick sidewalk below, John Catucci, 10, of 134 North Clinton street, Poughkeepsie, had only a scratch on his forehead and nose to show for his narrow escape from death early Monday morning. The family were awakened by hearing a cry shortly after 1 o'clock and then the steady ringing of the doorbell. It was John seeking readmittance to his home. He did not remember walking in his sleep.

An ebbing tide and an offshore wind caught 11 youngsters at their game and carried them far out into the harbor. One or two jumped and reached shore. Police rescued some others, but the Whitehouse boys and Kendall could not be found, although officers grappled for hours for their bodies.

Curry lost his life in another part of the harbor, when he went to warn his brothers and their friends that the ice was unsafe. His body was found.

Now, IT'S INSURANCE!

TWO MIGHTY FORCES, representing two conflicting theories of human relations, are at grips today in Europe—and in the United States.

The combatants abroad use bombs and bayonets. In the home sector, they struggle for the approval of the American people at the polls, as it should be in a democracy.

One group fights for the traditional

American way of free enterprise—with its balance sheet of trial and error, mistakes offset by brilliant contributions to progress. The other fights for the belief that the energies of the individual can best be controlled by political agencies for the greatest good of the greatest number.

Both are sincere. But the case for political control makes us the victims of a wide-spread popular delusion. As a noted sociologist expressed it: "The greatest fallacy in human logic is to attribute to present social or economic systems those problems which arise from the nature of man himself."

In their eagerness to promote the cause of national economic planning, its proponents through investigations discover and emphasize "those problems which arise from the nature of man himself."

Thus unusual and infrequent episodes appear as major defects seeming to condemn the free enterprise system. Control by Federal boards and bureaus is then proposed.

This has been our recent course in relation to commercial and investment banking, power and light, manufacturing, labor relations, oil, coal, communications—investigations first; then political control in the name of reform.

Insurance next to banking holds the largest pool of our savings.

Bankers as "money changers" were subjected early to investigation; 42 Federal lending agencies resulted.

Today another Federal investigation is publicizing the problems of insurance

"which arise from the nature of man himself," insignificant though they are when compared to the amazing contribution of insurance to human welfare.

If the people accept the fallacy that there is cause for condemning the institution of insurance, the camel's nose will slip under the tent.

The nose will represent a little competition—compulsory burial insurance and Federal Annuities; a degree of Federal control; a small part in the determination of how insurance investments shall be made; a hand in the administration of the business operation. Just steps. But the first steps along this road, as all history and recent events abroad and at home make clear, are never retraced, but call for further steps.

Hospital Dance Last Pre-Lenten Affair

Kingstonians and friends of Ulster county are to enjoy a real treat when they attend the mid-winter benefit dance for the Kingston Hospital at the Governor Clinton Hotel Saturday evening, February 3.

This dance is held annually the first Saturday evening in February and has established itself as the outstanding pre-lenten social event.

The purchase of tickets for the Kingston Hospital benefit dance assures not only an enjoyable evening, but the knowledge of contributing to a worthy cause.

Society will dance to strains of an orchestra extraordinaire, namely, the Meyer Davis, which plays for nearly all the prominent debutantes in New York city as well as the Junior and Kneicker-bocker Assemblies.

This orchestra was the only American orchestra which had the privilege of playing for their majesties, the King and Queen of England, while they were in the United States. This orchestra also plays for many of the White House functions. It has been well named, America's favorite society orchestra.

Supper will be served at midnight and the committee has planned a delightful menu.

Members of the hospital auxiliary have tickets available. Committee heads working with the general chairman, Mrs. Frederick Snyder, include Mrs. Parker K. Brinnier, tickets; Mrs. R. Frederic Chidsey, publicity, and Mrs. Kenneth H. LeFever, Mrs. John B. Krom and Mrs. A. B. Shufeldt, music.

A Wedding Question in Reverse

Dear Mrs. Post: We are trying to complete the plans for my daughter's wedding. Originally she was being married at noon, and I had intended to have a substantial wedding collation. Now the wedding hour is changed to late afternoon. Some friends, who have been extremely helpful with some of the wedding details, have unfortunately upset me by claiming that it would be entirely out of place to serve a substantial collation at this late afternoon hour. Many of the wedding guests are driving a long way home after the wedding; also my daughter and her husband will be leaving on a motor trip. I feel that all these people should have some substantial food before they leave. Fruit punch, party sandwiches, small fancy cakes and wedged cake, even with chocolate or coffee and bouillon, sounds very inadequate to me under the circumstances.

Answer: It may be that my column is to blame for giving you friends this impression, since I have so often given precisely the menu you list. But I have given this in answer to the many letters which have asked just what is the most, but instead what is the least that may be served at an afternoon hour and not have the refreshments seem too meager. For your collation, I would add a hot dish, such as lobster or crabmeat Newburg, or chicken à la king, or creamed chicken with mushrooms, or the old standby of chicken croquettes with celery salad—or if you want another hot dish, you might choose rice croquettes with one of the creamed chicken dishes. Or you can add a salad with any variety of gelantine. And also add ice cream. In other words, the only reason why menus have grown short, is that at a between-meal hour very few people care to eat more than a thin sandwich or two, or to drink anything further than a toast to the bride and groom.

Don't Talk to Friends on Duty

Dear Mrs. Post: If one happens to be eating in a restaurant and discovers that one of the waiters is an old friend who has been unheard of for months, is it out of order to get up to shake hands with him?

Answer: In the first place, one sitting at a restaurant table is expected to get up to greet any one—no matter who, because it would be a disturbing thing to do. In the second place, it is improper to make one who is on duty (in no matter what capacity) conspicuous. A waiter on duty is not under as strict discipline as is a soldier standing at attention with his company, but the idea is almost the same—not quite since you may of course smile and nod to the waiter, or say what you like to him if he stands near you, which you can't do to the soldier on parade.

(Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad, however, to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Restaurant and Theatre." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

Touchdown Club Will Make Awards

Washington, Jan. 16 (AP)—Four young men who monopolized the sports pages last autumn will get together for the first time tonight.

The occasion is the fourth annual dinner of the Touchdown Club—an organization composed of men who once played college football and don't like to forget it.

The guests of honor:

Nile Kinnick of Iowa, an All America halfback, who was called the outstanding football player of 1939.

John Kimbrough of Texas A. & M. an All America fullback who was voted the outstanding player of all the bowl games after the regular season.

Ken Kavanaugh of Louisiana State, one of the greatest ends the south ever produced.

Don Herring, Princeton's stellar tackle, who lost his leg after a football injury.

Kinnick will receive the Touchdown Club's Walter Camp memorial award; Kavanaugh the club's award to the "linebacker of the year," and Kimbrough and Herring special awards.

Brian Bell, chief of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, will be the principal speaker. His topic is "Relax."

Eddie Anderson, the Iowa mentor who was voted the "coach of the year," accompanied Kinnick to the capital.

Before going to the Touchdown Club dinner, Herring was scheduled to receive from Vice President Garner a gold watch awarded him by the Spokane athletic round table in recognition of his courage.

McCarthy Says Yankees Will Start With the Same Lineup

New York, Jan. 16 (AP)—The toughest job when he replaced Lou Gehrig that fateful day of last May, Frankly hadn't measured up to the rest of the Yankees at bat. Afield, he is perfection and has made the Yank infield again a coordinated unit almost without a defensive weakness.

And there is a suspicion that Manager Joe McCarthy's terse statement, "naturally I plan to start the season with the same lineup I had last year" will bring joy to a lot of Yankee hearts—and to Ellsworth (Babe) Dahlgren's in particular. Joe made that remark yesterday while here to check over the Yanks' rookie list with President Edward Barrow.

Not many of the Yanks, whose fourth straight world series championship last fall showed they were practically devoid of weaknesses, were concerned over getting their old jobs back.

Di Maggio, Selkirk, Keller, Gordon, Roffe, Dickey, Ruffing all appeared certain to start again where they left off last fall. The lone figure of First Baseman Dahlgren seemed to be the exception. Babe, who took over baseball's

'Covering Up' of Players Is Old Violation in Baseball

Chicago, Jan. 16 (AP)—A lot of baseballs have been knocked out of the park since 1906, but even back in those days the powers-that-were campaigned against the violators of the professional game's rules governing player transactions.

The game's long struggle to keep player manipulations within legal bounds was emphasized boldly once again this week by Commissioner K. M. Landis' edict freeing 91 baseball players owned by the Detroit club and valued at $500,000.

In freeing four Detroit players and 87 minor leaguers and ordering payment of almost $50,000 to 14 other players, Landis warned the club owners and executives that continued "covering up" of players would result in banishment from baseball of the guilty parties.

Just 36 years ago this spring the national baseball commission, composed of Ban Johnson, Harry C. Pulliam and August Hermann, drew up what is thought to be the first rule striking at such practices. For violation of rules on player transactions, the commission set fines of $1,000 on major league clubs, $750 for class A and so on down the line.

The commission warned that a second offense would lead to the withdrawal of the protection of the game's governors—which would amount to wrecking a club since its hold on its players would have no legal status.

Since that time there have been repeated warnings and repeated violations. Less than two years ago the baseball world was jolted when Landis lashed out at the St. Louis Cardinals. He charged the club with mishandling players, gave free agency to more than 100 of them and levied fines against the Cards and some of their affiliates.

But the Detroit case exceeds by far all past ones in magnitude. The commissioner not only freed the 91 players but prohibited Detroit and affiliated clubs from dealing for them within three years. In addition, the Chicago Cubs were fined $1,000 and the St. Louis Browns $1,000 for meddling and Cleveland was assessed $2,000 for "covering up" a player.

The action struck a damaging blow at Detroit's plans for rebuilding the Tigers in the near future.

Pete Cappy Wins Albany Bout

Pete Cappy, the Kingston lightweight Sammy Offerman is grooming for ring laurels, came through with a surprise victory last night in Albany, defeating Young Chapie of the capital city.

Cappy, who went to Albany to look on, was called to substitute, and made an impressive showing as he jabbed the upstate veteran into submission with a spearing left.

His victory earned him a place on the next card to be held at the Capitol Arena in two weeks, and if he comes through as impressively as last night, there's no doubt but that he'll be popular with the Albany professional boxing patrons.

Chapie was featured on one of the cards in the municipal auditorium last summer.

Happy-Go-Lucky Linehans Take Their Fun With Seasons

Napanoch, Jan. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Jack Linehan and daughter, Nancy, of Napanoch are a happy-go-lucky family; an inseparable trio, they enjoy many vigorous sports together.

In the spring they all pile into a canoe to paddle around a nearby lake, in the summer they go horseback riding and swimming, in the fall they hike and in the winter they ski and skate.

"We're all pretty much alike and get a big kick out of plenty of outdoor exercise," said tall and rugged Mr. Linehan as he was interviewed while skiing near Ellenville recently with his wife and seven-year-old daughter.

A native of Dexter, Me., Mr. Linehan is employed at the New York City Water Supply project near here where he operates a "bulldozer" huge machine used for surface grading.

Little Nancy is a game youngster when it comes to tackling a new sport. Despite her youth, she is a proficient horseback rider and fair skier.

"I like sports very much," smiled Nancy, "and I'm never afraid to ride a strange horse or ski down a steep hill so long as I'm with Daddy and Mommy."

Mrs. Linehan, too, is enthusiastic about the outdoors and divides it pays in health.

Mr. Linehan's athletic prowess in 1934 won for him the national senior single-blade canoe championship at the President's Cup Regatta in Washington.

He served in the 27th Division Field Artillery in the first World War.

At the regular meeting of the Community Circle held last week Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Christensen, the work of the last year was reviewed and the report showed beside their increased devotional and recreational work and the singing of Christmas carols, that they raised a little over $65 and spent over $50 to help finance the church, also help pay for some of the improvements of the church.

The officers elected for the present year were president, Violet Christensen; vice-president, Verna Wager; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Florence N. Christiana. The president reappointed Mrs. William H. Barringer as honorary president, and appointed a committee to arrange for the cafeteria lunch and the community social for the public to be held next week Friday evening, January 26, in the Davis homestead on the corner as follows:

Mrs. William H. Barringer, Mrs. Katie Davis, Mrs. Harry Moore, Mrs. James Bush, Mrs. Conrad Christensen, Mrs. Florence N. Christiana, Violet Christensen, John A. Barringer and the pastor. This committee met the next night at the parsonage and made the final plans for the affair.

At the regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Pedersen last Friday afternoon, the annual report was given showing the new society raised $200.70 during the year and spent over $140 of this to assist the church and help make improvements to the church, and that they have 24 members, the new officers were elected for the year as follows: President, Mrs. Simon Merrin; vice-president, Mrs. William H. Barringer; secretary, Mrs. Loren Hover; treasurer, Mrs. Katie Davis; chaplain, Mrs. Florence N. Christiana. The next meeting is to be held at the home at the home of Mrs. Cecil Gray at Olive Bridge, the first Friday in February. It was voted to have a get together of all the members and a social evening in honor of their first anniversary. Mrs. William H. Barringer invited them to have this at the parsonage and the invitation was accepted.

Church school next Sunday morning will be at 10 o'clock.

Morning divine worship service at 11 o'clock, with sermon by the pastor, subject of sermon, "Be of Good Cheer." Subject of sermon for the children, "Self Control."

The year 1940 is the 600th anniversary of Chaucer's birth, the centenary of the first postage stamp and (approximately) the centenary of the first practical photography.
